RE: 13-86

This is one of those times you should just acknowledge this was a bad idea and move on. EVERYONE knows the only reason you consider to do this is money. Advertisers & Broadcasters want to get their sex themed ads to a younger demographic, especially when school is out. You want to be their friends and future employees, so you help all you can. No one really believes this is in the public's best interest.

You must however remember you work for the tax payers to regulate the broadcasters, not the other way around. No one watches a kid/family friendly show and says "It was good, but it really needed some nudity and vulgar language."
